

ScreenWay

Data Visibility

Data visibility - the right information at the right time in the right context

T. Engl

23. Februar 2026

In a modern corporate world where data is considered the new oil, many strategies fail not because of a lack of information, but because of its lack of presence in day-to-day operations. While conventional dashboards often gather dust in countless browser tabs or complex CRM systems, the ScreenWay the decisive transformation from mere data visualization to real data visualization. Data Visibility. Data visibility means that the right information appears at the right time in the right context without employees having to actively search for it. This is where ScreenWay as an intelligent digital nervous system that breaks down isolated data silos and brings business-critical key figures from digital abstraction directly into the physical workspace. Whether in a bustling sales office or on the busy shop floor of a production facility, the solutions from ScreenWay ensure that metrics become highly visible and thus trigger immediate, proactive action. Especially for the millions of "deskless workers" who do not have a fixed PC workstation in logistics, production or healthcare, the ScreenWay an indispensable enabler for true information inclusion. The seamless mirroring of live data from systems such as Power BI or ERP platforms on large-format displays democratizes communication and massively increases responsiveness. An impressive practical example of this is Schmidt Präzisionstechnik GmbH, which has been able to achieve a significant increase in productivity through the use of ScreenWay reduced their downtimes by 15 % by immediately visualizing warning signals as an unmistakable impulse to act. ScreenWay impressively proves that data only unfolds its full power when it is in the field of vision of every employee. In this way, the platform transforms passive reporting into active optimization and makes the decisive difference between merely managing the past and future-oriented real-time control. Those who rely on ScreenWay The company that sets its own goals is highly visible and gains a significant competitive advantage through maximum transparency and a motivated, constantly informed team.